Jimmy Buffett & The Coral Reefer Band 2011 Tour

Welcome To Fin Land

Jimmy and the Coral Reefers begin their annual "it's summer when we call it summer" appearances across the country and around the world. Before he left in January for several performances Down Under, Jimmy spoke with Kathy McCabe at Sydney's Daily Telegraph.

"Keeping the work and play ratio balanced is a big thing for me. I just turned 64 -- who thought we'd still be doing it -- and you may have noticed that we are coming down there for three shows but I'm staying for 10 days, so I'll be in the water a lot."

He credits his experience as a boat captain for his business acumen. "I have a little bit of organizational [sic] skill that comes from running a boat. If you're on an ocean voyage, there are good times but there is also a system that has to be in place to work properly," Buffett says.

With 40 years of repertoire to fit into a show, the singer and band leader says there is a clutch of songs demanded by "Darwin's Law". "I have to play those ones or I get killed; it's the survival of the fittest setlist," he says. But he will be adding some local flavour to the shows by "Buffettising" some well-known Australian tunes. Yet he has no plans to adapt his stage uniform -- T-shirt, shorts, no shoes -- for the venerable Sydney Opera House. "Let's just say I'm not bringing a sports coat or shoes. The Opera House is by the water after all."

marshall chapman's big lonesome

the blonde stranger's latest release on tall girl records is dedicated to coral reefer tim krekel

"I wasn't going to make another album, at least not alone," says Chapman. She and close friend Tim Krekel were planning to record a duet album when Krekel was diagnosed with cancer. "Three months later he was gone," Chapman continues. "Dreams were dashed, gigs got cancelled, and life went on. As trite as it may sound, the only thing that comforted me during this period was picking up my guitar. Then new songs started writing themselves. They were coming from an uncharted place so deep and true, I knew what I had to do." Chapman contacted Michael Utley (producer for Jimmy Buffett and Roy Orbison, and player on albums by Aretha Franklin, Kris Kristofferson, and the Neville Brothers), who brought in Will Kimbrough, "Uncle" Jim Mayer, and Casey Wood. Utley himself plays Hammond B3 organ. Longtime friend Kristofferson said of Marshall's new album: "In this soulful, sincere tribute to her 'best friend in music, Tim Krekel,' Marshall reminds me how she reminds me of Hank Williams. The songs are heart-breaking and beautiful and exhilarating and absolutely honest. And Mike Utley's co-production and keyboard and Casey Woods' mixing and percussion are perfect. There's not a false note on the album. I believe Marshall truly does 'love everybody' and it shines through every song."

SOLDIER RIDE

Soldier Ride is a Wounded Warrior Project initiative that provides adaptive cycling opportunities across the country to help wounded warriors restore their physical and emotional well-being. It is a unique experience that honors our military men and women as they courageously battle the physical and psychological damages of war. Through the exhilaration of cycling, warriors embrace possibilities for the future in a supportive environment with fellow injured service members.

The wounded warriors rode in to Key West on a balmy Saturday afternoon last January. Margaritaville has supported the Soldier Ride program for the last six years. We proudly bear our welcome banner showcasing signatures of previous participants and were immediately surrounded by appreciative warriors at the welcome ceremony. We reacquainted ourselves with return riders and made new friends with the rookies. The riders and support staff descended on Margaritaville for gifts, a raffle and a free meal provided by Jimmy Buffett. Surprised diners and tourists were thrilled to be a part of the annual celebration in the country singer's café and through tall tales and tributes fought to get the next round.

Locked and loaded, the troops then headed down the street to a highlight of the trip, a USO Benefit Show presented by the lovely "ladies" of Aqua Nightclub. There's nothing like a fresh faced 20 year-old from the Midwest with a female impersonator in his lap. The girls donated their time and talent raising money for the WWP. During an auction Aqua Nightclub owner Jill McDonald outbid a patriotic patron, paying $1200 for a Soldier Ride painting and promptly offered it to a wheelchair bound young man whose last steps were in Afghanistan 3 months ago. This generous gesture improbably silenced a room full of drag queens. Tough guy tears, meet One Human Family.

We are very proud to be associated with the WWP and equally proud to live in a community that offers the warriors a respite from reality, where the meals are free and served by lip-synching drag queens, and a night on the town is followed by a good night rest. Sleep well soldiers, see you next year.

 The selections brought together in The Occasional Margareader represent a great many of those volumes that fill Jimmy's personal bookshelves. They're the writers and the writings that he's mentioned in his stories, referenced in his liner notes, and alluded to down through the years in songs you truly do know by heart. In short, they reflect Jimmy's tastes in reading, and here you can sample them in, more or less, buffet style.
 Paperback, 394 pages. Contains 48 selections.
